MICHIGAN LAW REVISION COMMISSION
FORTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT TO THE LEGISLATURE
FOR CALENDAR YEARS 2015 AND 2016

To the Members of the Michigan Legislature:

The Michigan Law Revision Commission hereby presents its forty-seventh annual report pursuant to section 403 of Act No. 268 of the Public Acts of 1986, MCL § 4.1403.

The Commission, created by section 401 of Act No. 268 of the Public Acts of 1986, MCL § 4.1401, consists of two members of the Senate, with one from the majority and one from the minority party, appointed by the Majority Leader of the Senate; two members of the House of Representatives, with one from the majority and one from the minority party, appointed by the Speaker of the House; the Director of the Legislative Service Bureau or his or her designee, who serves as an ex officio member; and four members appointed by the Legislative Council. The terms of the members appointed by the Legislative Council are staggered. The Legislative Council designates the Chair of the Commission. The Vice Chair is elected by the Commission.

Membership

The legislative members of the Commission during 2015 and 2016 were Senator Bert Johnson of Detroit; Senator Tonya Schuitmaker of Lawton; Representative Peter Lucido of Shelby Township; and Representative Rose Mary Robinson of Detroit. Legislative Council Administrator John G. Strand was the ex officio member of the Commission until April 20, 2016. Interim Legislative Council Administrator John C. Bollman was the ex officio member of the Commission from May 4, 2016 to November 9, 2016. Legislative Council Administrator Jennifer Dettloff has been the ex officio member of the Commission since November 9, 2016. The appointed members of the Commission were Richard D. McLellan, Anthony Derezinski, George E. Ward, and William C. Whitbeck. Mr. McLellan served as Chairperson and Mr. Derezinski served as Vice Chairperson. Jane O. Wilensky served as Executive Secretary. Brief biographies of the Commission members and staff are located at the end of this report.

The Commission's Work in 2015 and 2016

The Commission is charged by statute with the following duties:

1. To examine the common law and statutes of the state and current judicial decisions for the purpose of discovering defects and anachronisms in the law and to recommend needed reform.
2. To receive and consider proposed changes in law recommended by the American Law Institute, the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, any bar association, and other learned bodies.
3. To receive and consider suggestions from justices, judges, legislators and other public officials, lawyers, and the public generally as to defects and anachronisms in the law.
4. To recommend such changes in the law as it deems necessary in order to modify or eliminate antiquated and inequitable rules of law, and to bring the civil and criminal law of this state into harmony with modern conditions.
5. To encourage the faculty and students of the law schools of this state to participate in the work of the Commission.

6. To cooperate with the law revision commissions of other states and Canadian provinces.
7. To issue an annual report.

The problems to which the Commission directs its studies are largely identified through an examination by the Commission members and the Executive Secretary of the statutes and case law of Michigan, the reports of learned bodies and commissions from other jurisdictions, and legal literature. Other subjects are brought to the attention of the Commission by various organizations and individuals, including members of the Legislature.

The Commission's efforts during the year have been devoted primarily to three areas. First, Commission members provided information to legislative committees related to various proposals previously recommended by the Commission. Second, the Commission examined suggested legislation proposed by various groups involved in law revision activity. These proposals included legislation advanced by the Council of State Governments, the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, and the law revision commissions of various jurisdictions within and outside the United States. Finally, the Commission considered various problems relating to special aspects of current Michigan law suggested by its own review of Michigan decisions and the recommendations of others.

As in previous years, the Commission studied various proposals that did not lead to legislative recommendations. In the case of certain uniform or model acts, the Commission sometimes found that the subjects treated had been considered by the Michigan Legislature in recent legislation and, therefore, did not recommend further action. In other instances, uniform or model acts were not pursued because similar legislation was currently pending before the Legislature upon the initiation of legislators having a special interest in the particular subject.

Proposals for Legislative Consideration in 2015 and 2016

In addition to its new recommendations, the Commission recommends favorable consideration of the following recommendations of past years upon which no final action was taken in 2015 and 2016:

- (1) Enhance Licensure of International Corporate Lawyers in Michigan, 2012-13 Annual Report, page 6.
- (2) Updating the Open Meetings Act, 2012-13 Annual Report, page 18.

Current Study Agenda

Topics on the current study agenda of the Commission are:

- (1) Review of Emergency Preparedness Laws.
- (2) Impact of Immigration Policies on Michigan Laws.
- (3) New Cyber Business Court.

The Commission continues to operate with its sole staff member, the part-time Executive Secretary. The current Executive Secretary of the Commission is Jane O. Wilensky, who was responsible for the publication of this report. By using faculty members at several Michigan law schools as consultants and law students as researchers, the Commission has been able to operate on a budget substantially lower than that of similar commissions in other jurisdictions. At the end of this report, the Commission provides a list of more than 120 Michigan statutes passed since 1967 upon the recommendation of the Commission.

The Office of the Legislative Council Administrator handles the administrative functions and fiscal operations of the Commission under procedures established by the Legislative Council.

The Commission continues to welcome suggestions for improvement of its program and proposals.

Respectfully submitted,

Richard D. McLellan, Chairperson
Anthony Derezinski, Vice Chairperson
George E. Ward
William C. Whitbeck
Senator Bert Johnson
Senator Tonya Schuitmaker
Representative Peter J. Lucido

Analysis of the Michigan Constitution and Statutes Affected by Obergefell v Hodges

INTRODUCTION

In June 2015, the United States Supreme Court ruled that under the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, same-sex couples have a constitutionally protected right to marry. Obergefell v Hodges, 135 S Ct 2584 (2015). Accordingly, states must issue marriage licenses to same-sex couples and also must recognize marriages of same-sex couples performed in other states.

The Michigan Law Revision Commission has the statutory duty to “Examine the common law and statutes of this state and current judicial decisions for the purpose of discovering defects and anachronisms in the law and recommending needed reforms”. MCL 4.1403(1)(a). In keeping with this duty, the Commission initiated a review of Michigan laws to identify constitutional provisions and statutes that are implicated by the Obergefell decision. This Report contains the results of that review.

This Report was written just after the United States Supreme Court decided Obergefell. Since then, some of the statutes cited in the Report have been amended. In preparing the Report for publication, those statutes were identified and, for the reader’s convenience, are noted.

The following keywords were used to identify affected constitutional and statutory provisions:

1. Husband(s)
2. Wife
3. Wives
4. Father
5. Mother
6. Marriage
7. Married

The Report contains three sections:

Section 1, Constitutional Law Provisions and Statutes, identifies provisions in the Constitution and statutes that because of gender-specific terms should be changed to gender-neutral terms to conform to the new constitutional standard. Provisions are identified numerically by section and include both the text of the constitutional or statutory provision and the solution to revise the specific text to conform to Obergefell.

Section 2, Policy Issues, identifies statutes affected by the decision that require more than simple language changes to conform to Obergefell. Rather, the subject matter of these statutes calls for specific review by the Legislature because the particular issue implicates policy considerations beyond just a simple textual solution.

Section 3 contains the Michigan Law Revision Commission’s recommendation to use a single statute to amend multiple provisions of state laws to efficiently bring state statutes into conformity with Obergefell, and the authority and rationale relied on by the Commission to support this approach.

As an advisory body to the Legislature, the Commission has traditionally avoided taking a position on matters that are highly divisive, partisan, or adequately addressed by others. This Report adheres to those principles.

SECTION 1. CONSTITUTIONAL LAW PROVISIONS AND STATUTES

CONSTITUTION

Michigan Constitution of 1963

1. Article I Section 25

- Text:
 - To secure and preserve the benefits of marriage for our society and for future generations of children, the union of one man and one woman in marriage shall be the only agreement recognized as a marriage or similar union for any purpose.
- Solution:
 - Remove entirely or, at a minimum, annotate to say: This section was held invalid as in conflict with U.S. Const. Am. XIV and Obergefell v Hodges, 135 S Ct 2584 (2015).

2. Article X Section 1

- Text:
 - The disabilities of coverture as to property are abolished. The real and personal estate of every woman acquired before marriage and all real and personal property to which she may afterwards become entitled shall be and remain the estate and property of such woman, and shall not be liable for the debts, obligations or engagements of her husband, and may be dealt with and disposed of by her as if she were unmarried. Dower may be relinquished or conveyed as provided by law.
- Solution:
 - Annotate section to recognize the conflict with U.S. Const. Am. XIV and Obergefell v Hodges, 135 S Ct 2584 (2015).

The Commission thanks Jacob Coate, a student at the University of Michigan Law School, for his work on this report.

The death of a spouse shall not terminate the deferment of special assessments for a homestead owned by husband and wife under tenancy by the entireties as long as the surviving spouse does not remarry. Special assessments deferred under this act may be paid in full at any time.

In case of persons interested in such lands whose names are unknown, the bill of complaint shall so state, and such persons may be made parties to such suits by the name and description of “unknown owners.”

- Text:

The payment of compensation to any dependent child shall cease when the child reaches the age of 18 years, if at the age of 18 years he or she is neither physically nor mentally incapacitated from earning, or when the child reaches the age of 16 years and thereafter is self-supporting for 6 months. If the child ceases to be self-supporting thereafter, the dependency shall be reinstated. Failure to give written notice within the time specified shall be grounds for dismissal of a claim as to any defendants that did not receive that notice unless sufficient information for determining that a retail licensee might be liable under this section was not known and could not reasonably have been known within the 120 days. In the event of the death of either party, the right of action under this section shall survive to or against his or her personal representative. 1. ESTATES IN DOWER

“Dower,” at common law, is a wife’s right, upon her husband’s death, to a life estate in one-third of the land that he owned. Black’s Law Dictionary. Michigan still has laws that recognize a wife’s dower rights. No similar laws exist for a husband. The following statutory provisions relate to dower and should be reviewed, particularly in the event the Legislature repeals Michigan’s dower laws.

(These statutory provisions have been affected by 2016 PA 489.)

MCL 558.1 (Right of widow to dower)

- Text:
The widow of every deceased person, shall be entitled to dower, or the use during her natural life, of 1/3 part of all the lands whereof her husband was seized of an estate of inheritance, at any time during the marriage, unless she is lawfully barred thereof.

MCL 558.2 (Dower in lands exchanged; election)

- Text:
If a husband seized of an estate of inheritance in lands, exchange them for other lands, his widow shall not have dower of both, but shall make her election to be endowed of the lands given, or of those taken in exchange; and if such election be not evinced by the commencement of proceedings to recover her dower of the lands given in exchange, within 1 year after the death of her husband, she shall be deemed to have elected to take her dower of the lands received in exchange.

MCL 558.4 (Dower in mortgaged lands; purchase money mortgage given after marriage)

- Text:
“When a husband shall purchase lands during coverture, and shall at the same time mortgage his estate in such lands to secure the payment of the purchase money, his widow shall not be entitled to dower out of such lands, as against the mortgagee or those claiming under him, although she shall not have united in such mortgage, but she shall be entitled to her dower as against all other persons.”

MCL 558.6 (Dower in lands released by payment of mortgage)

- Text:
“If, in either of the cases above specified, the heir or other person claiming under the husband, shall pay and satisfy the mortgage, the amount so paid shall be deducted from the value of the land, and the widow shall have set out to her, for her dower in the mortgaged lands, the value of 1/3 of the residue after such deduction.”

MCL 558.7 (Dower in aliened lands; estimation)

- Text:
“When a widow shall be entitled to dower out of any lands which shall have been aliened by the husband in his lifetime, and such lands shall have been enhanced in value after the alienation, such lands shall be estimated, in setting out the widow's dower, according to their value at the time when they were so aliened.”

MCL 558.12 (Alternative dower rights before assignment; occupation, profits and rents receipt)

MCL 558.13 (Barring of dower; joining in conveyance, release)

- Text:
A married woman residing within this state may bar her right of dower in any estate conveyed by her husband or by his guardian, if he be under guardianship, by joining in the deed of conveyance and acknowledging the same as prescribed in the preceding chapter, or by joining with her husband in a subsequent deed, acknowledged in like manner; or by deed executed by the wife alone to one who has theretofore acquired and then holds the husband's title, provided the intent to bar her right of dower shall be expressed in said deed.

MCL 558.14 (Barring dower; jointure)

- Text:

(2) In any action commenced by any widow for the recovery of dower in lands which were aliened by her husband in his lifetime, if dower cannot be assigned in the land by metes and bounds without injustice or manifest injury to the widow or to the owners or persons in possession of the land or some one of them, the court having cognizance of the matter may award a sum of money in lieu of dower to be paid to the widow, or may assign to her, as tenant in common, a just proportion of the rents, issues, and profits of the lands. In all cases the court shall consider the true value of the lands at the time of their alienation by the husband, and of the probable duration of the life of the doweress at the time the sum of money is awarded or the rents, issues, and profits are assigned to her.

2. STATUTES THAT REFERENCE “MOTHER” AND “FATHER” AND/OR “HUSBAND” AND “WIFE”

The following statutes include references to “father” and “mother”, and/or “husband” and “wife”, and do not recognize that parents of children may be same-sex couples. SECTION 3. AUTHORITY FOR USE OF A SINGLE PUBLIC ACT TO AMEND MULTIPLE SECTIONS OF MICHIGAN STATUTES AND RECOMMENDED TEXT

I. Authority for Use of a Single Public Act to Amend Multiple Sections of Michigan Statutes

Bills that amend more than one statute are introduced infrequently because of the restrictions imposed by the “Title/Object” provision of the Michigan Constitution. Const 1963, art IV, § 24. There are, however, instances where one statute having a single purpose references and affects other related statutes.

For example, Const 1963, art VI, § 26 abolished Justice of the Peace courts. A number of statutes were subsequently enacted to eliminate references to the abolished courts, some of which were single bills that amended multiple statutes. Several single bills were drafted, each of which had a common subject matter nexus to the statutes being amended in the bill, in order to be mindful of the Constitution’s “Title/Object” provision and not be overbroad. (See 1978 Legislative Session in the section of this Annual Report titled “Prior Enactments Pursuant to Michigan Law Revision Commission Recommendations”.)

Bills that amend more than one act are permissible if the bill concerns a single object and if the bill request has been recommended by the Michigan Law Revision Commission. The use of a single public act to amend multiple statutes is permitted by the following authority.

1. CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS

A. Const 1963, art IV, § 15 Legislative Council

There shall be a bi-partisan legislative council consisting of legislators appointed in the manner prescribed by law. The legislature shall appropriate funds for the council’s operations and provide for its staff which shall maintain bill drafting, research and other services for the members of the legislature. The council shall periodically examine and recommend to the legislature revision of the various laws of the state.

B. Const 1963, art IV, § 24 Laws; object, title, amendments changing purpose

No law shall embrace more than one object, which shall be expressed in its title. No bill shall be altered or amended on its passage through either house so as to change its original purpose as determined by its total content and not alone by its title.

2. STATUTORY PROVISIONS

Legislative Council Act (Excerpt), 1986 PA 268

MCL 4.1403 Duties of commission; availability of writings to public

The Michigan law revision commission shall do each of the following:

Examine the common law and statutes of this state and current judicial decisions for the purpose of discovering defects and anachronisms in the law and recommending needed reforms.

Recommend changes in the law it considers necessary in order to modify or eliminate antiquated and inequitable rules of law, and bring the law of this state into harmony with modern conditions.

Report its findings and recommendations to the council and annually, before January 2 of each year, to the legislature. If the commission considers it advisable, it shall accompany the commission's report with proposed bills to implement the recommendations.

3. LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL RULES (as adopted through October 23, 2003).

Chapter 7: Drafting; General Rules

The Bureau shall not accept a bill request unless the request is sufficiently specific to determine the subject and the purpose of the bill to be prepared.

The Bureau shall accept a bill request that will amend more than one act in a single bill if both of the following apply:

The purpose of the request has been formally approved or recommended by the Michigan Law Revision Commission pursuant to its duties as provided in Section 403 of the Legislative Council Act, Act No. 268 of the Public Acts of 1986, being section 4.1403 of the Michigan Compiled Laws.

The Bureau has determined that the sections to be amended are necessarily or properly related, or otherwise meet the requirements of Const 1963, art IV, § 24.

II. Michigan Law Revision Commission Recommendation and Proposed Statutory Language for Single Act to Address OBERGEFELL V HODGES.

The Michigan Law Revision Commission has the statutory duty to “Examine the common law and statutes of this state and current judicial decisions for the purpose of discovering defects and anachronisms in the law and recommending needed reforms”. MCL 4.1403(1). The recent decision of the U.S. Supreme Court in Obergefell v Hodges, 135 S Ct 2584 (2015) has direct implications on the text of more than one hundred Michigan laws involving a wide range of subjects, rendering those statutes anachronistic in light of the Supreme Court decision.

The Commission believes that changes are necessary to bring the laws of this State into harmony with modern conditions, and, in the interest of legislative efficiency, believes that this is a situation in which a single bill that directs the use of gender-neutral terms rather than gender-specific references may effectively be used to amend multiple acts.

For these reasons, the Commission has determined that the sections to be amended are necessarily and properly related and meet the requirements of Const 1963, art IV, § 24.

PROPOSED TEXT FOR BILL REQUEST:

Revised Statutes of 1846 (EXCERPT)

CHAPTER 83. Of marriage and the solemnization thereof.

Sec. 551.1A. ALL PROVISIONS OF LAW THAT UTILIZE GENDER-SPECIFIC TERMS IN REFERENCE TO THE PARTIES TO A MARRIAGE SHALL BE CONSTRUED IN A GENDER-NEUTRAL MANNER AS NECESSARY TO EFFECTUATE THE INTENT OF THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT DECISION IN OBERGEFELL V HODGES, 135 S CT 2584 (2015).

Re: Driver's Licenses for Immigrants

BACKGROUND

In August 2015, the Michigan Law Revision Commission held a meeting about driver's licenses, State identification and Michigan immigrants. The meeting was prompted by the following report prepared for the Commission by Susan Reed, Supervising Attorney of the Michigan Immigrant Rights Center, about expanding access to driver's licenses in Michigan for applicants without proof of immigrant status. ("MIRC Report") The meeting was an opportunity for interested individuals and organizations to provide the Commission with any information or materials that might help the Commission's understanding of the issues addressed in the MIRC Report.

It was clear from the attendance and discussion that the issue of driver's licenses for immigrants is important to a wide variety of constituencies. It is also clear that the issue of who gets to drive in Michigan involves more individuals than just those who do not have proof of their immigration status.

The National Conference of State Legislatures uses four categories when considering immigration policy: legal immigrants, migrant and seasonal workers, refugees and unauthorized immigrants (who are also described as illegal or undocumented immigrants or aliens).

Michigan is home to many foreign-owned companies, and there is a lawfully present foreign workforce population in the state. Other Michigan and U.S. companies operate in the State and employ lawfully present immigrants. When considering legal immigrants, and others who are legally present in the United States, including those here for a fixed period of time (nonimmigrants), having a Michigan driver's license is a privilege that is essential to working and living in the State.

An issue important to legal nonimmigrants in Michigan, including those holding H1b, L1, TN and O visas, is the inability to renew their driver's licenses notwithstanding being in full compliance with all immigration laws. This is because the Secretary of State refuses to renew these individual's licenses if it is determined that, although the nonimmigrant filed a timely request to continue his or her current status, the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) has yet to approve the request. This is so even though USCIS itself recognizes that such nonimmigrants are in valid legal presence during the period of the extension request. Extensive delays in USCIS processing plus the suspension of the ability to request premium (expedited) processing have significantly impacted the ability of a nonimmigrant to obtain an approval in time to satisfy the Secretary of State. This handicaps Michigan employers who rely on these nonimmigrants as part of their workforce, and also, as in the case of medical doctors, harms Michigan citizens who rely on the ability of such medical doctors to drive to work in order to treat their patients.

RECOMMENDED ACTION

The Michigan Law Revision Commission received the Report titled “Driver’s Licenses, State ID, and Michigan Immigrants” as part of its charge to identify defects and anachronisms in the law, and bring the laws of this state into harmony with modern conditions.

The Commission does not take a position on any specific recommendation contained in the Report but approves including the Report in its Annual Report in order to make it available for review by the Legislature and the public.

MICHIGAN LAW REVISION COMMISSION REPORT ON DRIVER'S LICENSES, STATE ID, AND MICHIGAN IMMIGRANTS

Introduction

Since 2008, Michigan has required applicants for driver's licenses and state identification to provide proof of U.S. citizenship or immigration status. This change was part of a series of post-9/11 changes and has had significant consequences for all Michiganders who use the roads. Ten states, plus the District of Columbia, have already changed their laws to permit some form of legal driving without proof of immigration status.¹ States have chosen to restore access to driver's licenses irrespective of immigration status to address significant economic and public safety-related challenges posed by greatly increased numbers of unlicensed drivers, including reductions in the agricultural workforce and exclusion from the insurance market.

This report highlights the economic and safety benefits to all Michigan residents of expanding access to driver's licenses for all otherwise eligible Michigan drivers. Section One describes the legal background, the federal REAL ID Act and states' relationship to it; Section Two explores the potential benefits to the State of Michigan of allowing more individuals to be eligible for state driver's licenses and identification cards; and Section Three states specific recommended changes to Michigan law.

Section 1: Background

A. Background of Michigan Driver's Licenses & REAL ID Act Compliance

Prior to 2008, Michigan law contained no requirement that an applicant for a driver's license or state ID card have a specific immigration or citizenship status in order to be eligible. Applicants did need to submit documents that were sufficient to prove identity and establish state residency. A 1995 Michigan Attorney General opinion concluded that there was no law precluding an "illegal alien" from establishing residence in Michigan.² The relevant statute defined a resident as: "[one who] resides in a settled or permanent home or domicile with the intention of remaining in this state," and it contained no reference to citizenship or immigration status.³ In December 2007, Attorney General Mike Cox issued a superseding opinion.⁴ The 2007 Attorney General opinion stated that an unauthorized immigrant cannot be considered a Michigan resident and, in fact, only a Lawful Permanent Resident, commonly called a "green card" holder, could be considered a Michigan resident under the law.⁵

The Secretary of State implemented the late-2007 AG opinion in early 2008 and excluded from eligibility tens of thousands of lawfully present noncitizens as well as all unlawfully present immigrants.⁶ To address the concerns raised by the sudden change in circumstances for so many individuals who relied on the ability to drive to live, work, and study in the state, often for many years at a time, the Michigan

Legislature changed the statute in February of 2008 to specify that driver's license and state ID applicants who are not U.S. citizens must be "legally present" in the U.S., including both temporary and permanent forms of legal immigration status.⁷ The definition of "legally present" has been slightly changed by lawmakers since 2008, but at this point, it refers to federal law to determine who is "legally present." Michigan law does not currently reflect the requirements of the federal "REAL ID Act."⁸

In June 2012, the Obama Administration announced a program called Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA), which grants temporary relief from deportation and employment authorization documents for young people who entered the U.S. as children and meet certain education and background requirements⁹. (These young people are often referred to as "DREAMers" because they would benefit from the federal DREAM Act if it were to become law.) Initially, Michigan Secretary of State Ruth Johnson indicated that the Department of State did not consider DACA beneficiaries to be "legally present" and would not issue driver's licenses or state identification cards to them.¹⁰ However, after she was sued by a group of DACA beneficiaries and the federal government provided clarification about their legal presence, the Secretary of State reversed her decision and began issuing driver's licenses and state IDs to DACA beneficiaries in February of 2013.¹¹

Michigan law does not currently provide driver's licenses to individuals with no legal status, and many people who are U.S. citizens or in lawful immigration status have struggled to prove it or obtain verification. Significant delay may occur while the Secretary of State verifies certain categories of immigration documents with United States Citizenship and Immigration Services through its Systematic Alien Verification for Entitlements (SAVE) program, and noncitizens who hold those statuses are unable to hold driver's licenses during verification or reverification periods.

B. Background of REAL ID Act

Signed into law on May 11, 2005, the federal REAL ID Act provides that driver's licenses and state IDs that do not meet the Act's requirements will not be accepted for specifically defined federal purposes. Since the enactment of REAL ID, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) has repeatedly extended the deadline by which state driver's licenses must meet its criteria to be accepted for federal purposes.¹² Most recently, in December 2014, DHS extended the full compliance deadline to October 1, 2020.¹³ Until compliance is required, Michigan licenses and state ID may be used as identification for the specified federal purposes. Some of these federal purposes include accessing federal facilities, boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft, and entering nuclear power plants.¹⁴

C. Two-Tiered States' Driver's Licenses

One of the REAL ID's requirements is that the applicant for a license must prove, and state agencies must verify, his or her U.S. citizenship or immigration status. However, states are not required to issue licenses that meet the Act's criteria nor must states exclusively issue licenses that meet the Act's criteria. If states decline to issue any form of REAL ID Act-compliant licenses, however, their residents must produce another identity document, such as a passport, or be subjected to additional screening for any of the specified federal purposes.¹⁵ In order to provide as many residents as possible with legally regulated access to the roads and access to government-issued identity documentation, many states have created two categories of driver's licenses and state identification: residents may either prove U.S. citizenship or immigration status and apply for an Act-compliant document which allows use for "federal" purposes, or residents may apply for a non-Act-compliant document for state and local purposes only. Residents unable to prove or verify citizenship or immigration status could choose the non-Act-compliant license. In 2013, eight states and the District of Columbia followed other states in passing laws that enable residents to obtain driver's licenses and state identification cards regardless of their citizenship or immigration status.¹⁶

Section Two: Potential Benefits to the State of Michigan

A. Citizens May Lack Proof of Citizenship

Immigrants are not the only individuals in Michigan who are currently harmed by our existing driver's license and identification restrictions. In addition to assisting noncitizens residing in Michigan, providing a non-Act-compliant form of driver's license would benefit U.S. citizens who cannot prove their citizenship. According to a 2006 study by the Brennan Center for Justice at New York University School of Law, as many as 7% of U.S. citizens nationwide did not have ready access to citizenship documents for a variety of reasons, including older African Americans whose births were never registered due to discriminatory practices, U.S. citizens born abroad to American parents (common in military families), and foreign adoptees.¹⁷ Under current Michigan law, inability to prove citizenship results in inability to drive legally.

Advocates for successful prisoner reentry often cite lack of access to driver's licenses and state ID as an obstacle to successful prisoner reentry. While a 2008 Memorandum of Understanding between the Michigan Department of State and Michigan Department of Corrections allows a former prisoner's Department of Corrections ID to be used as an identity document, a prisoner must still have access to documents establishing proof of U.S. citizenship or immigration status to obtain a license under current law.¹⁸ Increasing access to driver's licenses could increase workforce participation by ex-offenders, and workforce participation is a key factor in reducing recidivism.¹⁹

B. Insurance Savings to Consumers and Private Sector Profits

Michigan requires all individuals who want to register a car and get license plates to provide proof of insurance. Despite this, Detroit has one of the highest car insurance rates of all American cities, and Michiganders in general also pay relatively high rates.²⁰ An insurance pool widened by re-licensed undocumented immigrants would hold down premium costs for all Michigan residents. Costs accruing to all Michigan residents in the insurance market could be further mitigated by fewer claims originating with unlicensed uninsured drivers, which otherwise would be paid for by insured drivers. Michigan insurance companies will also receive increased per capita revenues from the addition of new drivers required to purchase auto insurance.

C. Enhanced Public Safety

Michigan residents will be safer if drivers are licensed and insured irrespective of immigration status because some part of the population that is unlicensed due to inability to prove citizenship or immigration status still drives. Unlicensed drivers in general are five times more likely to be in a fatal crash as licensed drivers.²¹ Although drivers who have lost driver's licenses or cannot obtain them because they lack proof of citizenship or immigration status are not entirely representative of the overall unlicensed population, excluding them from driver's training, screening, and testing means missing opportunities to address problems. Ensuring that all Michigan drivers are knowledgeable of traffic laws will decrease accidents, decrease the number of uninsured drivers who flee the scene of an accident, and consequently better the health and well-being of all Michigan residents. For example, since New Mexico began issuing non-status-dependent driver's licenses in 2003, alcohol-related crashes decreased 32% and traffic fatalities fell 23%.²² Licensing eligible individuals who cannot prove immigration status will also make communities safer in general. Studies show that by creating a more inclusive community and improving relations between immigrant communities and law enforcement, members of these communities will be more comfortable contacting the police to report and cooperate in the investigation of accidents and crimes.²³ Allowing regulated access to official identity documents to the broadest group of people also has the tendency to reduce the risk of corruption among government staff and discourage the production of fraudulent documents.

Driver's licenses assist law enforcement officers to more quickly identify the drivers they stop and evaluate if there is a threat to the officer's safety, as well as to check the driver's traffic and criminal record. Police can use their resources more efficiently when residents have identity documents with accurate data, as it can take significant resources to identify an individual who doesn't possess any government-issued identification.²⁴ In addition, the driver's license database is the largest law enforcement database in the country, providing vast personal information, including photographs, that is updated regularly as drivers renew their licenses. State driver's license databases are more complete than the IRS database, the Social Security database, or state birth certificate databases – it is thus an invaluable tool for police investigation. A more complete database benefits law enforcement.²⁵

D. Stronger Workforce Participation

Studies have found that individuals who lack the ability to obtain driver's licenses have more difficulty maintaining steady employment, as they do not always have access to public transportation or other transit opportunities. This makes it less attractive for job creators to want to hire these individuals, as well as more likely that employers will fire people who often show up late or miss work shifts. Having a driver's license enables job seekers to be able to drive at any time—whether planned in advance or spur of the moment. This affords people much more flexibility, allowing for advanced planning for work shifts and overall a greater ability to work more frequently. The approximately 150,000 unauthorized residents in Michigan play a large role in the farming, auto, and manufacturing industries.²⁶ By allowing this workforce to lawfully drive to and from work, they will be better workers by arriving to work consistently and on time.

E. Other Contributions to the Economy

In addition, having greater access to automobile transportation increases purchasing power and consumer activity.²⁷ Michigan residents who obtain driver's licenses will contribute to Michigan's economy by being able to accomplish everyday tasks that require transportation outside the home. These include going to the grocery store, visiting the doctor, dentist, and orthodontist, shopping at the mall, and even attending local community and religious establishments, such as church and holiday affairs. Having a valid driver's license allows people to engage in these activities without worrying about potential consequences or sacrificing other economic activities in their place. In addition, driver's licenses are often used as a standard form of identification for essential daily activities, such as cashing checks, renting an apartment, and purchasing various forms of insurance. Without a valid license, individuals and communities at large are prevented from participating in these economic activities that are both essential to a stable home as well as beneficial to the Michigan economy. The ability to obtain driver's licenses will also promote the purchase of automobiles, a historical and essential industry to the Michigan economy.

Perhaps most significantly, Michigan's agriculture industry depends on a mostly immigrant workforce for steady, constant production and processing. This industry is particularly profitable in Western Michigan, which produces one-third of the state's total agricultural sales—about $1.5 billion of the regional economy. Since the 2008 changes in Michigan's driver's license law, Michigan agriculture industry groups have consistently complained of a shortage of agricultural workers in the state.²⁸ Michigan's Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers Workgroup (MSFW), a collaboration of state agencies and stakeholders created by the Michigan Civil Rights Commission, issued a report in March 2013 highlighting the work done over the past three years to improve the living and working conditions of migrant and seasonal farmworkers in Michigan. One of the recommendations moving forward focuses on driver's licenses. Specifically, the workgroup recommends improving the system in which migrant and seasonal farmworkers go about applying for licenses, as there still remains confusion over what individuals do or do not need to prove. The report makes it clear that access to driver's licenses is extremely important for regular seasonal and migrant farmworkers' ability to participate in the workforce.²⁹

F. Increased State Revenue

Michigan could generate significant license fee revenue from newly eligible driver's license applicants. State revenues from vehicle registrations and taxes on insurance premiums and car purchases would also likely see an increase. New Mexico, which expanded access to driver's licenses in 2003, has thus far generated an estimated $500 million in new revenue.³⁰

Section Three: Recommended Changes to Existing Michigan Law

Current Michigan law conditions driver's license eligibility on proof of citizenship or proof of legal status in the United States. In order to come into eventual compliance with the REAL ID Act to allow the majority of Michigan residents to use Michigan licenses for federal purposes and to provide driver's licenses to those without proof of citizenship or legal immigration status, the State of Michigan should:

1. Provide two forms of driver's licenses: one for those with United States citizenship or proof of legal status ("standard operator's license") and one for individuals without proof of legal status ("limited purpose operator's license");
2. Set standards for documentation required for the limited purpose operator's license;
3. Set standards for documentation required for the standard operator's license to come into compliance with the REAL ID Act;
4. Determine aesthetic differences between the standard operator's license and the limited purpose operator's license, including, but not limited to: symbol(s) on the front of each license and a disclaimer on the back of the limited purpose operator's license (e.g., "This card is not acceptable for official federal purposes. This license is issued only as a license to drive a motor vehicle. It does not establish eligibility for employment, voter registration, or public benefits");
5. Increase penalties for providing fraudulent information to the Michigan Department of State, including fraudulent claims of state residency.

California: Assembly Bill 60 (“AB 60”) (2013), see Cal. Veh. Code §§ 12801, 12801.9. Grants original driver’s licenses to applicants who have never received a social security number and who are not presently eligible for a social security number. Applicants must meet all other qualifications for licensure and provide proof of identity and California residency. The statute sets forth a non-exhaustive, enumerated list of acceptable documents for identity and residency purposes, and grants authority to the California Department of Motor Vehicles (“CA DMV”) to adopt emergency regulations specifying additional acceptable documentation. Original driver’s licenses issued pursuant to this program are required to have a small recognizable, distinguishing feature on the front (specifically, the letters “DP” replace the existing “DL”) and a disclaimer on the back (“This card is not acceptable for official federal purposes. This license is issued only as a license to drive a motor vehicle. It does not establish eligibility for employment, voter registration, or public benefits.”). The statute also: prohibits discrimination on the basis of holding a driver’s license issued pursuant to this program; prohibits the CA DMV from disclosing information obtained by applicants (including immigration-related information) except as required by law; prevents employers from disclosing applicant’s driver’s license information; and prevents driver’s licenses issued pursuant to this program from being used to consider an individual’s immigration status or as a basis for investigation or arrest.

Colorado: Senate Bill 251 (“SB 251”) (2013), see Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 42-2-505. Grants driver’s licenses to applicants not lawfully present in the U.S. Applicants must: sign an affidavit attesting to Colorado residency and provide proof of residency; apply for and provide proof of an individual taxpayer identification number (“ITIN”) issued by the U.S. IRS; sign an affidavit attesting that the applicant has applied for lawful presence or will do so as soon as eligible; and present one of three enumerated identity documents from the applicant’s country of origin (passport, consular ID card, or military ID card). A driver’s license issued pursuant to this section must clearly display the following disclaimer on its face: “Not valid for federal identification, voting, or public benefit purposes.”

Connecticut: House Bill 6495 (“HB 6495”) (2013), see Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. §§ 14-36, 14-36m. Grants driver’s license to applicants who do not have proof of legal presence in the U.S. or who do not have a social security number. Applicants must submit proof of Connecticut residency and identity; acceptable residency and identity documents are defined by statute. Applicants must also submit an affidavit attesting that they have filed an immigration application or that they intend to file such application once eligible to do so. Applicants who have been convicted of felonies in Connecticut are not eligible for the license. Driver’s licenses issued pursuant to this section are required to contain a disclaimer that the license is not valid for federal identification purposes. This driver’s license may not be used for voting purposes and is “for driving purposes only.”

Nevada: Senate Bill 303 (“SB 303”)(2013), see Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 483.291. Allows applicants, regardless of status, to obtain driver authorization cards (DACs) by providing foreign birth certificates or passports as proof of age and identity. Applicants must also prove their residency in the state, which can be done by providing two original or certified copies of documents such as a rent receipt or lease, a bank or credit card statement, an employment pay stub, among others. DACs are valid for one year and cost $22.25 (plus an additional $25 for testing). DACs appear identical to standard driver’s licenses, except they state “not valid for identification” in the top right and state “Driver Authorization Card” instead of “Driver License.” In addition to DACs and standard driver’s licenses, Nevada began issuing REAL-ID compliant licenses on November 12, 2014. SB 303 also prohibits the release of information relating to one’s legal status for purposes of enforcing immigration laws. See Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 481.063.

Utah: Senate Bill 227 (“SB 227”)(2005), see Utah Code Ann. § 53-3-207. Provides for the issuance of driving privilege cards for individuals who do not have proof of lawful presence. The card is not valid as proof of age for any government purpose and is valid for one year. To obtain a driving privilege card, applicants must submit fingerprints and a photograph conducted by the Bureau of Criminal Investigation or another applicable law enforcement agency. There is a $25 licensing fee, and fingerprinting costs $25 as well. Applicants who do not have a social security number must present proof of residency for six months and provide a tax identification number. The card states “for driving privileges only” on it. After the enactment of the driving privilege card, Utah saw a decline in its uninsured rate, in alcohol-related car crashes, and in the number of fatal car crashes. The law also requires the Bureau or agency to notify DHS (through ICE) if the applicant has any felony convictions in his or her criminal history or if there is an outstanding arrest warrant. The Bureau or agency is also required to inform DHS if the applicant is subsequently convicted of a crime for which there was a warrant. See Utah Code Ann § 53-3-205.5.

Vermont: Senate Bill 38 (“S38”)(2013), see Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 23, § 603. Allows individuals unable to establish legal presence to obtain an “operator’s privilege card” or alternate identification card. Applicants must have proof of their name, date and place of birth, and Vermont residency. Proof of name and date and place of birth can be achieved through valid foreign passports and certified records of birth, marriage, or divorce. Proof of residency can be established with two pieces of mail received within 30 days with the applicant’s name and address on it, a vehicle title or registration, a bank statement, an insurance card or bill, state or federal tax documents, or medical health bills, receipts, or records. Vermont’s operator’s privilege card is also available to residents who can establish legal presence but who otherwise fail to comply with the REAL ID requirements. The operator privilege card states on its face that it is not valid for federal identification or official purposes. The card expires at midnight on the eve of the applicant’s second birthday following the date of issuance or, if the applicant pays a fee, on the eve of the applicant’s fourth birthday following the card’s issuance.

Washington: House Bill 1444 (“H 1444”)(1993), see Wash. Rev. Code Ann. § 46.20.035. Allows applicants for driver’s licenses or “identcards” who lack social security numbers to obtain licenses or cards with alternate documentation to prove Washington residency. Such documentation includes utility bills and tax identification numbers. Washington was the first state to provide licenses for undocumented individuals. It has a uniform license system.

MICHIGAN LAW REVISION COMMISSION

REPORT TO THE LEGISLATURE ABOUT THE CREATION OF A NEW CYBER BUSINESS COURT

Michigan's existing business courts grew out of the now-defunct cyber courts. See 2012 PA 333, MCL 600.8031 et. seq. The business courts, however, resolve disputes offline, as subsidiary dockets of traditional circuit courts. See MCL 600.8031. This memo proposes the creation of an online business court: one that would handle large business or commercial claims completely online, rendering dispositive, appealable decisions through online procedures.

First, existing models for online resolution of business disputes are reviewed, starting with Michigan's cyber and business courts and moving on to private models, international and academic models, and state attempts to integrate new technology into traditional courts.

Next, the memo reviews the core values and practical considerations in creating an online business court. Any court should be guided by considerations of efficiency, expertise, legitimacy, finality, and fairness. Building on the success of Michigan's business courts, resolving national commercial suits online would make the business courts more attractive forums, since they would combine greater efficiency and expertise with the trust, finality, and due process traditionally associated with the judicial process.

Finally, the memo makes recommendations about the structure of the new cyber business court.

I. Background: Michigan's Specialized Cyber and Business Courts

Michigan has previously established both cyber courts and business courts. Michigan's cyber courts were created in 2001. See 2001 PA 262. The cyber courts, however, were never funded. Toering, The New Michigan Business Court Legislation: Twelve Years in the Making, 2013 Bus. L. Today 1 (Jan 2013). The cyber court legislation was repealed in 2012 and replaced by Michigan's currently functioning business courts. See 2012 PA 333, MCL 600.8031.

Both the cyber and business courts were intended as economic development initiatives—to create a technology-driven process that efficiently resolves business disputes and encourages high-tech companies to come to Michigan. See Shulman, Cyber Court in Michigan, 80 Mich. B.J. 45, 46 (Nov 2001); The New Michigan Business Court Legislation: Twelve Years in the Making, 2013 Bus. L. Today at 2. This is why the jurisdiction of the two courts is almost identical: both courts governed “business and commercial disputes.” See MCL 600.8005, MCL 600.8035. The business court's jurisdictional definition, at MCL 600.8031, is almost identical to the definition used in the cyber court statute, 2002 PA 663, at MCL 600.8005.³¹ The business courts, however, do not live online in the same way the cyber court would have. Compare MCL 600.8001 with MCL 600.8039.

A. Cyber Court

The cyber court was “an ambitious experiment,” as “the first courtroom in the nation to fully operate over the Internet.” Koscielniak & Wasson, Cyber Court, 82 Mich. B.J. 48 (Jan 2003). All hearings and proceedings were “to be conducted by means of electronic communications,” accommodating “parties or witnesses . . . located outside of” Michigan. MCL 600.8001. Open proceedings would be “broadcast on the internet.” Id. The physical and virtual facilities of the cyber courts were separate from the circuit courts. See MCL 600.8001(h), MCL 600.8001(3). The Michigan Supreme Court would have assigned judges to the cyber court under MCL 600.8003.

³¹ The business court legislation diverges from the cyber court's jurisdictional provision only in its lists of examples of actions that are and are not included within the court's jurisdiction. Compare MCL 600.8005(4)(c) with MCL 600.8031(2)(c); and MCL 600.8005(5) with MCL 600.8031(3).

The cyber court had “concurrent jurisdiction over business or commercial disputes in which the amount in controversy exceeds $25,000.00.” MCL 600.8005. Participation in the cyber courts was voluntary, so that jurisdiction operated by consent. See MCL 600.8011. By proceeding with an action in the cyber court, the parties also waived the right to a jury trial. MCL 600.8013. The cyber court was a court of record. MCL 600.8001; see also MCL 600.1416 (generally designating courts of record).

B. Business Court

The business court is not a separate court in the same way as the cyber courts were—instead, it is a “special docket” of Michigan’s circuit courts. See MCL 600.8031, MCL 600.8033. The business court docket is similarly defined, however, by reference to subject matter jurisdiction over business and commercial disputes. See MCL 600.8035. For those circuit courts required to have this special docket, jurisdiction is mandatory rather than concurrent. See MCL 600.8033, MCL 600.8035. The Michigan Supreme Court assigns sitting circuit judges to the business court “in a number reasonably reflecting the caseload of the business court.” MCL 600.8037.

The business courts have been functional since 2013, and more information can be found on the Michigan courts’ website. Michigan Judiciary, Business Courts, <<http://courts.mi.gov/administration/admin/op/business-courts/pages/business-courts.aspx>> (accessed March 4, 2015). See also Toering, Michigan's Business Courts and Commercial Litigation, 93 Mich. B.J. 26 (Aug 2014).

C. A New Cyber Business Court

The business court legislation expresses a purpose to resolve business and commercial disputes within its jurisdiction “with the expertise, technology, and efficiency of the information age economy.” MCL 600.8033. However, the only carryover from the “cyber” portion of the cyber courts is section 600.8039’s direction to file by electronic communications “whenever possible” and to meet any other “minimum standards” for technology prescribed by the state court administrative office. The business courts could resolve national commercial disputes with greater efficiency if they did more to incorporate new technology. By creating a special online court that models the old cyber court, Michigan could realize those benefits and leap to the forefront of legal technology.

II. Online Justice: Existing Models

Michigan is not the only actor to attempt to build a system of justice that incorporates new technologies, but there are no public systems that resolve disputes online. The following review of other high-tech justice systems is not intended to be comprehensive; it simply reflects the models discussed in the literature.

A. Private Sector: Online Dispute Resolution

The private sector has expanded the arena of online dispute resolution (ODR), an online version of alternative dispute resolution. A number of articles canvass these technologies, exploring the various strengths and weaknesses of the models in resolving various kinds of disputes. See, e.g., Schmitz, “Drive-Thru Arbitration in the Digital Age: Empowering Consumers through Binding ODR,” 62 Baylor L. Rev. 178 (2010). These tools are most appropriately used to resolve small claims that originate online, and usually require consent of both parties to the determination of the mediator. Id.

B. Virtual Courthouses

Apart from the never-operational Michigan cyber court, there are not many examples of fully virtual courts. These courts are distinguished from ODR by the traditional and binding nature of the proceedings.

i. Academic Model: Courtroom 21

The Center for Legal and Court Technology, previously known as Courtroom 21, is billed as “the world’s most technologically-advanced courtroom.” Center for Legal and Court Technology <<http://www.legaltechcenter.net>> (accessed March 7, 2015). The Center is located at William & Mary’s Marshall-Wythe Law School and run in partnership with the National Center for State Courts. Id. The space models a partially virtual courthouse that can be used by academics and practitioners for training and experimentation. See Ponte, The Michigan Cyber Court: A Bold Experiment in the Development of the First Public Virtual Courthouse, 4 N.C. J. L. & Tech. 51, 53 n 5 (2002); Lederer, The Courtroom 21 Project: Creating the Courtroom of the Twenty-First Century, 43 No. 1 Judges’ J. 39, 41-42 (2004) (mentioning a test of “fundamental concepts that were then planned for the Michigan CyberCourt”).

ii. International Examples

Though neither Israel nor Singapore has moved to a completely online system, they have gone a long way to transferring case management and courtroom procedures to the virtual realm.

An Israeli court digitization project called the “New Generation Court System” implemented a wide-ranging online case management program in “all courts subject to the jurisdiction of the Court Administration Office.” See Rabinovich-Einy, Beyond Efficiency: The Transformation of Courts Through Technology, 2008 UCLA J.L. & Tech. 1. The project includes “five basic features: electronic file, work space, calendar, e-filing and task assignment.” Id.

Singapore has also made extensive court reforms to incorporate new technology in all stages of court proceedings. See Magnus, The Confluence of Law and Policy in Leveraging Technology: Singapore Judiciary’s Experience, 12 Wm. & Mary Bill Rts. J. 661, 662-663 (2004) (discussing Singapore’s use of “video link [including for witness testimony], electronic data interchange, and broadband technologies,” as well as “systems for judicial-decision support, case management, performance measurement, and public service extension”).

C. Integrating Online Procedures into Existing Courts

There are many examples of states integrating new technologies into brick-and-mortar courts. A few highlighted in the literature are mentioned below.

i. Arizona’s Division Two

Division Two of the Arizona Court of Appeals is “virtually paperless.” Espinosa, A Word from the Future, 49 No. 3 Judges’ J. 10, 10 (2010). That court has implemented electronic filing (e-filing) as well as an electronic document management system. Id. Further, all judges and staff are encouraged to “give up the paper security blanket,” providing tools such as new display screens and tablets and reaching a “consensus that everyone would have to . . . go ‘paperless.’” Id. at 11.

ii. Florida’s Courtroom 23

The Ninth Judicial Circuit Court of Florida worked with William & Mary’s Center for Legal and Court Technology to implement an advanced high-tech courtroom. Technology Support, Ninth Judicial Circuit Court <<http://www.ninthcircuit.org/services/technology-support>> (accessed March 7, 2015). The court incorporates a variety of audio and visual equipment, including many evidence presentation devices, automated reporting, and cameras that can broadcast proceedings on the Internet. The Michigan Cyber Court, 4 N.C. J. L. & Tech. at 54 n 7.

iii. Michigan E-Filing

Michigan courts do not uniformly allow e-filing. The Michigan Court of Appeals has allowed e-filing for several years, and the system was recently extended to the Michigan Supreme Court. See Administrative Order No. 2014-23 (2014). Additionally, there are a number of successful e-filing pilot projects currently running in the circuit courts. See Administrative Order No. 2014-24 (2014).

A. Online Justice: Core Values and Considerations

Any new court should be designed to capture the benefits associated with specializing in business litigation online, most notably, efficiency and expertise, without compromising the core values necessary to traditional court systems: public legitimacy, finality through enforceable judgments, and due process.

Using new technologies almost inherently increases efficiency. Moving disputes online saves parties money and time, and can be significantly more convenient for out-of-state litigants used to conducting business over the Internet. See Fernandez & Masson, Online Mediations: Advantages and Pitfalls of New and Evolving Technologies and Why We Should Embrace Them, 81 Def. Couns. J. 395, 399 (2014) (citing flexibility, convenience, and reduced costs among benefits of online mediations); Gilliéron, From Face-to-Face to Screen-to-Screen: Real Hope or True Fallacy?, 23 Ohio St. J. on Disp. Resol. 301, 312-315 (2008) (emphasizing convenience, low cost, and speed of online dispute resolution); Schmitz, “Drive-Thru” Arbitration in the Digital Age: Empowering Consumers through Binding ODR, 62 Baylor L. Rev. 178, 200-202 (2010) (addressing aspects of online dispute resolution that enhance efficiency); Sommer, Business Litigation and Cyberspace: Will Cyber Courts Prove an Effective Tool for Luring High-Tech Business into Forum States?, 56 Vand. L. Rev. 561, 597-601 (2003) (evaluating whether Michigan’s cyber court will improve efficiency).

Specialization of judges in one subject matter—here, national business disputes—should also enhance expertise, hopefully leading to higher quality decisions and more predictable outcomes. See, e.g., Business Litigation and Cyberspace, 56 Vand. L. Rev. at 567, 584 (reviewing arguments for specialization in the form of business courts and exploring subsequent increases in the quality of decision making).

Michigan’s online forums, however, must not sacrifice crucial aspects of the judicial process in pursuit of efficiency and expertise. Most important are legitimacy, in the form of public trust; finality, achieved through the binding and enforceable nature of judgments; and fairness, best exemplified by due process concerns.

Litigants must trust the cyber process before they will use and respect it. See Business Litigation and Cyberspace, 56 Vand. L. Rev. at 593 (stressing foundational nature of legitimacy of court systems). Relocating judicial processes to the Internet may undermine the trust generally placed in courts in a few ways. Most obviously, online dispute resolution eliminates face-to-face communication, potentially weakening the relationship between the parties by dehumanizing the other side. See Online Mediations, 81 Def. Couns. J. at 399 (discussing loss of face-to-face experience). It may also be harder for the judge to act as a mediator, by making it harder to perceive emotions and nonverbal cues. See id. at 400; “Drive-Thru” Arbitration in the Digital Age, 62 Baylor L. Rev. at 220. These concerns, however, may be less salient in the context of a national business dispute, where the parties are large corporations and the subject of the litigation is, at least theoretically, less personal.

Online procedures must also be secure to be seen as legitimate. Both online and offline judicial proceedings must balance privacy against public access, but online proceedings present both greater opportunity for access to justice and greater concerns about confidentiality. See Ponte, The Michigan Cyber Court: A Bold Experiment in the Development of the First Public Virtual Courthouse, 4 N.C. J. L. & Tech. 51, 85-86 (2002). But see From Face-to-Face to Screen-to-Screen, 23 Ohio St. J. on Disp. Resol. at 320 (suggesting encryption technology is a sufficient solution for at least small claims). Authentication procedures for parties and judges can protect sensitive information and ensure parties are interacting with each other, rather than with hackers. See Online Mediations, 81 Def. Couns. J. at 401.

Enforceable judgments create finality, supporting the efficiency and legitimacy of a dispute resolution system. See Galves, Virtual Justice as Reality: Making the Resolution of E-Commerce Disputes More Convenient, Legitimate, Efficient, and Secure, 2009 U. Ill. J.L. Tech. & Pol'y 1, 3. See also The Michigan Cyber Court, 4 N.C. J. L. & Tech. at 73-73 (emphasizing the importance of enforceable decisions for successfully attracting parties). Michigan's cyber courts, even though they were located online, were courts of record. See MCL 600.8001. Any similar system should have the same safeguard.

Arguably, the most important values guiding any judicial system are fairness and due process. If online procedures largely mirror traditional courtrooms, they will likely contain the same due process safeguards. Transparency and predictability of decision making can enhance perceptions of fairness in online systems. See From Face-to-Face to Screen-to-Screen, 23 Ohio St. J. on Disp. Resol. at 317. Perhaps the biggest concern of commentators is how differential access to online justice systems can jeopardize due process. See Online Mediations, 81 Def. Couns. J. at 400; "Drive-Thru" Arbitration in the Digital Age, 62 Baylor L. Rev. at 218-220. However, it seems safe to assume that in a national commercial dispute, both parties will have similar access to the Internet and any other necessary technology.

B. Building a Cyber Business Court: Structural Considerations

Michigan, then, can build on its previous cyber and current business courts, drawing from models elsewhere to create a court that combines the efficiency of the Internet with the expertise of a business court, to achieve the honored judicial goals of legitimacy, finality, and fairness. A new cyber business court must be carefully designed to capture these principles and ensure the new procedures fit within the State's existing judicial framework. A focus on high-tech litigants can differentiate Michigan from the business courts in other states that "already ha[ve] a strong grip" on larger corporations. Sommer, 56 Vand. L. Rev. at 592-93.

a. Statutory Locus: Creating Separate Courts or Adding on to Business Courts

The first question to be answered is whether any new online court should exist separately from the circuit courts, as the cyber court did, or whether it should instead be built into the circuit courts, as the business courts are. See MCL 600.8001 (designating separate facilities of cyber courts); MCL 600.8031 (creating business courts as "special dockets").

The virtual proceedings fit naturally within the current business courts, as they would deal with a subset of business disputes that can be appropriately handled online. Locating the new cyber court within currently operating courts could resolve some of the funding issues that led to the demise of the old cyber court. Compare Toering, The New Michigan Business Court Legislation: Twelve Years in the Making, 2013 Bus. L. Today 1 (Jan 2013).

An appropriate first step to locate the new cyber court within the business court docket would be to strengthen the language of MCL 600.8039, the provision of the business court legislation that currently encourages use of e-filing and other electronic communications. Any amendments could pull from the repealed MCL 600.8001, which required the cyber court to "sit in facilities designed to allow all hearings and proceedings to be conducted by means of electronic communications," and to "schedule hearings or other proceedings to accommodate parties or witnesses who are located outside of this state."

Statutory language creating this category of specialized online judicial proceedings should capture and build on the technological advances already being used in Michigan's Court of Appeals and select counties, including e-filing, videoconferencing, and phone conferences. See Administrative Order No. 2014-23 (2014); Administrative Order No. 2014-24 (2014). Procedures surrounding e-discovery should be updated. Compare 22 NYCRR 202.70, Appendix A. New York's Commercial Division utilizes e-filing and allows parties to appear at conferences and conduct discovery through electronic means. The Chief Judge's Task Force on Commercial Litigation in the 21st Century, Report and Recommendations to the Chief Judge of the State of New York (June 2011); 22 NYCRR 202.70. Upgrades to Michigan's physical courtrooms should implement new audio and visual technologies in the courtroom. See Florida's Courtroom 23, supra, which includes evidence presentation devices, automated reporting, and cameras that can broadcast proceedings on the Internet.

b. Factfinders and Decision Makers

Adding a new specialized docket might require reassigning judges, and probably training judges and other court personnel on new technology. Any legislation should ensure necessary funding is provided for technological upgrades and capacity. Judges are assigned to the business court dockets from circuit courts. See MCL 600.8037; Michigan Judiciary, Business Courts <<http://courts.mi.gov/administration/admin/op/business-courts/pages/business-courts.aspx>> (accessed March 8, 2015). If cyber cases are assigned from the existing jurisdiction of the business court, the judges assigned to the business court docket are more likely to have the capacity to preside over the online disputes. This would take advantage of the expertise those judges have developed in handling complex commercial cases; but, because the business court judges sit within the circuit courts, it might also guard against the concerns of overspecialization, or insulation from general legal scholarship. See Sommer, 56 Vand. L. Rev. at 588 (comparing Michigan's cyber courts to Delaware business courts).

The cyber court legislation was less specific on where the assigned judges should be drawn from, but suggested that the Supreme Court should consider the experience, interest, and personal characteristics of the judge. See MCL 600.8003. The statutory language also seemed to invite the courts to utilize retired judges. See id.

Retired judges have case management expertise and, perhaps, more capacity than current judges to handle a new load of cases; however, they may need more training on new technologies. Michigan's Constitution and some statutes permit the Michigan Supreme Court to assign retired judges for limited purposes. See Const 1963, art 6, § 23; MCL 600.226 (authorizing retired judges to preside over cases); MCL 600.557 (defining senior judges and applicable requirements and duties, authorizing assignment to cases). The constitutional provision is not limited to judicial vacancies, but "allows the Court to designate retired judges for limited judicial duties or specific assignments." People v. Booker, 208 Mich App 163, 177; 527 NW2d 42 (1994) (establishing also that the age limitation in Const 1963, art 6, § 19, does not apply to retired judges thus authorized). Temporary assignments are valid even though the term of the visiting judge may be open-ended. See People v. Fleming, 185 Mich App 270, 274-275; 460 NW2d 602 (1990).

Absent statutory authorization, retired judges may not resolve disputes, or even act only as factfinders. See Oakland Co Prosecutor v. Beckwith, 242 Mich App 579, 584; 619 NW2d 172 (2000). See also Brockman v. Brockman, 113 Mich App 233, 237; 317 NW2d 327 (1982) (confirming that circuit courts may not implement statutes explicitly giving Supreme Court power to authorize performance of judicial duties). A court cannot assign judicial functions to retired judges acting as a discovery facilitator. See Neal v. James, 252 Mich App 12, 24; 651 NW2d 181 (2002), overruled on other grounds by Henry v. Dow Chemical Co., 484 Mich. 483, 505 (2009). The Michigan Constitution prohibits "master[s] in chancery." Const 1963, art 6, § 5. See also Karibian v. Palletta, 122 Mich App 353, 355-356; 332

NW2d 484 (1983) (citing Brockman, 113 Mich App 233, to suggest trial courts should not allow masters of chancery to find facts).

On balance, however, because of their experience and expertise, assigning current business court judges to the new cyber business court is recommended.

c. Finality of Decisions: Binding, Enforceable, Appealable

Legislation creating a new cyber business court should provide for finality of its decisions. The cyber court was a court of record, MCL 600.8001, generally giving it the power to enforce its own judgments. 1 Michigan Court Rules Practice, Forms, § 1:2. Appeals of its cases went to the Court of Appeals. MCL 600.8021. Appeals from business court decisions also go to the Court of Appeals. MCL 600.8041. These are appeals as of right within MCL 600.309.

d. Subject Matter Jurisdiction

Defining the jurisdiction of an online business court will help to determine where it should sit within the existing current court system. As discussed above, the former cyber court and current business court legislation contain almost identical jurisdiction over “business and commercial disputes.” See MCL 600.8005, MCL 600.8035. This term is currently defined broadly in the business court statute:

- (i) An action in which all of the parties are business enterprises.
- (ii) An action in which 1 or more of the parties is a business enterprise and the other parties are its or their present or former owners, managers, shareholders, members, directors, officers, agents, employees, suppliers, or competitors, and the claims arise out of those relationships.
- (iii) An action in which 1 of the parties is a nonprofit organization, and the claims arise out of that party’s organizational structure, governance, or finances.
- (iv) An action involving the sale, merger, purchase, combination, dissolution, liquidation, organizational structure, governance, or finances of a business enterprise. MCL 600.8031(c).

The business court’s jurisdictional provision also contains an amount in controversy requirement of $25,000. MCL 600.8035.

The jurisdiction of an online cyber business court should be differentiated from that of the business court by reference to the amount-in-controversy and description of the national nature of a dispute. A higher amount-in-controversy requirement and a higher filing fee would ensure the new cyber court deals with larger disputes. The New York County Commercial Division has a monetary threshold of $500,000, increased from $150,000 in 2014. 22 NYCRR 202.10. New Jersey’s Complex Business Litigation Program has a $200,000 threshold, but allows some judicial discretion. Notice to the Bar: Complex Litigation Program <<http://www.judiciary.state.nj.us/notices/2014/n141113b.pdf>> (accessed April 22, 2015). Cases could be routed into online proceedings by request of the parties and approval by a judge, as with the old cyber court. See MCL 600.8011. Building consent into a case’s assignment to the online court would also ensure that the court will have personal jurisdiction over the litigants.

If the online court is to be separate from the business court, an exception must be built into MCL 600.8035, since jurisdiction of the business court over cases covered by MCL 600.8031(c) is otherwise mandatory.

2015 REPORT ON RECENT COURT DECISIONS IDENTIFYING STATUTES FOR LEGISLATIVE ACTION AND RECOMMENDATIONS TO THE LEGISLATURE

As part of its statutory charge to examine recent judicial decisions to discover defects and anachronisms in the law and to recommend needed reforms, the Michigan Law Revision Commission undertook a review of Michigan Supreme Court and Court of Appeals decisions issued from January 1 through December 31, 2015, urging legislative action. That review identified four decisions for which the Commission makes no recommendation, and one decision for which the Commission recommends amendment of the relevant statute. The decisions examined by the Commission are:

1. Kent County Prosecuting Attorney v City of Grand Rapids, 498 Mich 939 (2015)
2. People v Keefe, 498 Mich 962 (2015)
3. Bedford Public Schools v Bedford Education Ass’n, 497 Mich 989 (2015)
4. People v Bosca, 310 Mich App 1 (2015)
5. In re: Estate of Jajuga, 312 Mich App 706 (2015)

1. Authority of a Home Rule City to Encroach Upon Either a County Prosecutor’s Power to Enforce State Law or the Laws of the State of Michigan

A. Background

Grand Rapids amended its City Charter in two significant ways. First, it made the possession, control, use, or giving away of marijuana a civil infraction. Second, it prohibited city police and the city attorney from referring complaints of such conduct to the County Prosecutor.

The Kent County Prosecutor sought a declaratory judgment that the City Charter amendment both usurped his authority and was preempted by state law. Both the trial court and the Court of Appeals held that the amendment was not preempted by state law and that it did not interfere with the County Prosecutor’s rights.

The Supreme Court denied the application for leave to appeal. Justices Viviano and Markman dissented. Kent County Prosecuting Attorney v City of Grand Rapids, 498 Mich 939 (2015). Justice Viviano believes the case presented an important constitutional question about whether a home rule city may, through its charter, encroach upon a county prosecutor’s power to enforce the law. Justice Viviano encouraged the Legislature to clarify the rights and responsibilities of the police and Prosecutor after an arrest is made, or, in the alternative, consider an amendment to the Home Rule City Act, MCL 117.41, to include charter provisions. Justice Markman agreed with Justice Viviano, and also urged the Legislature to address whether the charter amendment violated MCL 117.36, a section of the Home Rule City Act, which provides that “[n]o provision of any city charter shall conflict with or contravene the provisions of any general law of the state.”

B. Question Presented

Should the Legislature amend section 41 of MCL 117.41 to include charter provisions and/or clarify the rights and responsibilities of city officials in these types of cases?

C. Recommendation

The Commission recommends legislative review of these issues, but makes no recommendation of specific legislative action.

2. Nullification of Mandatory Minimum Sentence for Certain Criminal Sexual Conduct

A. Background

Under the Michigan Penal Code, a person who engages sexually with a person under 13 years of age shall be guilty of first degree criminal sexual conduct. MCL 750.520b(1)(a). Under MCL 750.520b(2)(b), if a violation is committed by a person who is 17 years or older, against a person who is under 13 years old, that individual shall be subject to a mandatory minimum sentence of 25 years.

In People v Keefe, 498 Mich 962 (2015), Defendant sexually penetrated the victim in 2006 and 2009. In the first instance, Defendant was 17 years old and the victim was 5. In the second instance, Defendant was 20 and the victim was 8.

The Prosecutor orally promised to amend the charges to reduce their severity (the threshold age of 17) in exchange for Defendant's guilty plea. This resulted in Defendant no longer being subject to the mandatory minimum sentence. The Defendant pled guilty; the trial court accepted the guilty plea; and Defendant was sentenced to two concurrent terms of 23-50 years. These sentences were two years shorter than the mandatory minimum required under MCL 750.520b(2)(b).

The Michigan Supreme Court denied the Application for Leave to Appeal. Justice Markman concurred but wrote separately to call the Legislature's attention to the possible effective nullification of the mandatory minimum sentence for first-degree criminal sexual conduct.

B. Question Presented

Should the Legislature amend MCL 750.520b(2)(b) to ensure that the mandatory minimum sentence is not avoided by action of a Prosecutor?

C. Recommendation

The Commission recommends legislative review of this issue, but makes no recommendation of specific legislative action.

3. Clarification of Terms in the Public Employment Relations Act

A. Background

Teachers in Michigan public schools may receive a pay increase either through a "step-increase", which is based on seniority, or a "lane change", which is based on the level of graduate education. MCL 423.215b precludes any pay increases for teachers while a Collective Bargaining Agreement is not in effect. The issue in this case is the ambiguity created by the two potentially contradictory phrases. MCL 423.215b(1) provides, inter alia:

"The prohibition in this subsection includes increases that would result from wage step increases."

".....a public employer shall pay and provide wages and benefits at levels and amounts that are no greater than those in effect on the expiration date of the collective bargaining agreement."

In Bedford Public Schools v Bedford Education Ass'n, 497 Mich. 989 (2015), the Supreme Court denied the Application for Leave to Appeal. Justice Bernstein concurred but wrote separately to express his concern about the problematic drafting of these two sections. In Justice Bernstein's view, by explicitly mentioning "wage step increases" and not explicitly mentioning "lane change" increases in the first excerpted phrase, the doctrine of expressio unius est exclusio alterius indicates that “lane change” increases are permitted. But “lane change” increases are still increases and, therefore, seem precluded by the second excerpted phrase. While the legislative history of the statute supports the latter interpretation, which precludes both “lane change” and “step increases,” Justice Bernstein recommends that the Legislature clarify their intent and in the future indicate whether statutory lists are illustrative or exhaustive.

B. Question Presented

Should the Legislature amend MCL 423.215b to clarify its application to “lane change” increases?

C. Recommendation

The Commission recommends legislative review of this issue, but makes no recommendation of specific legislative action.

4. Registration of an Individual as a Sex Offender under SORA When the Offense Requiring Registration is Not Sexual in Nature

A. Background

In June 2011, a few teenage boys, all minors, broke into Defendant’s home. While there, they stole Defendant’s marijuana. Two days later, Defendant lured the boys back to his home where he duct-taped them to chairs and assaulted them with a number of weapons.

Defendant was charged and convicted on a number of counts and the trial court required him to register as a sex offender under the Sex Offenders Registration Act, MCL 28.721 et. seq. (“SORA”). SORA requires a defendant to be registered as a sex offender when a person is convicted of one of the “listed offenses.” In this case, the listed offense was unlawful imprisonment of a minor. This offense, and all of the underlying conduct in this case, was not sexual in nature.

In People v Bosca, 310 Mich App 1 (2015), the Court of Appeals, after a lengthy review of statutory interpretation, case law, and the federal Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act, concluded that SORA did require Defendant to be registered as a sex offender even though the underlying conduct was not sexual in nature. But the Court found it troubling that a person could be deemed a sex offender without committing a sexual offense and noted the vagueness and ambiguity of the statute. The Court urged the Legislature to amend the statute to address those concerns. The Court suggested a number of potential remedies for the Legislature’s consideration:

1. Amending the short title so that the Act does not only refer to sexual offenders. The Court suggests “Sex and Child-Victim Offenders Registration Act.”
2. Amending the statement of legislative purpose to express an interest in both child-victim offenders as well as sex offenders.
3. Amending the act to include a definition of “sex offender” and “sex offense.”
4. Amending the act to separately define “child victim offender” and “child victim offense” so as to remove the perceived injustice of labeling a non-sexual offender as a sexual offender.
5. Amending the act to create separate registries for child-victim offenders and sex offenders.

B. Question Presented

Should the Legislature amend the Sex Offenders Registration Act to address the situation where a person is labeled a sex offender without having committed a sexual offense?

C. Recommendation

The Commission recommends that the Legislature consider the suggestions of the Court of Appeals and amend the Sex Offenders Registration Act to address the concerns of the Court.

5. Construction of the term “Exempt Property” under the Estates and Protected Individuals Code

A. Background

Shelby Jean Jajuga’s last will and testament expressly provided that some of her children were to “inherit nothing from her estate.” She explained her decision to disinherit them as not due to lack of love for them, but because they either received compensation before she died or because she did not believe it was in their best interest.

One of the disinherited children brought this action. MCL 700.2404 provides that a surviving child, in the absence of a surviving spouse, is entitled to “exempt property” from the estate. In this case, Ms. Jajuga left no surviving spouse and therefore, the disinherited child was covered by MCL 700.2024.

In In re: Estate of Jajuga, 312 Mich App 706 (2015), a case of first impression, the Court held that the term “entitled” rendered the “exempt property” immune to the expressed wishes of the decedent. The Court indicated that this result was strange since one of the policies of the Estates and Protected Individuals Code, MCL 700.1101 et. seq., was “to discover and make effective a decedent’s intent in distribution of the decedent’s policy.” MCL 700.1201(b). Thus, the Court recommended that the Legislature address how the intent to disinherit a child will affect their right to “exempt property.”

B. Question Presented

Should the Legislature amend MCL 700.1201(b) to specifically prescribe the way in which a statement of a decedent’s intent to disinherit a child under a will affects the child’s claim to “exempt property” under MCL 700.2404?

C. Recommendation

The Commission recommends legislative review of this issue, but makes no recommendation of specific legislative action.

2016 REPORT ON RECENT COURT DECISIONS IDENTIFYING STATUTES FOR LEGISLATIVE ACTION AND RECOMMENDATIONS TO THE LEGISLATURE

As part of its statutory charge to examine recent judicial decisions to discover defects and anachronisms in the law and to recommend needed reforms, the Michigan Law Revision Commission undertook a review of Michigan Supreme Court and Court of Appeals decisions issued from January 1 through December 31, 2016, urging legislative action. That review identified one decision for which the Commission makes no recommendation, and one decision for which the Commission recommends that the Legislature amend the relevant statute. The decisions examined by the Commission are:

1. People v Duenaz, 498 Mich 969; 873 NW2d 303 (2016).
2. In re: Gach, No. 328714, 2016 Mich App LEXIS 783, at *14-20 (Apr. 19, 2016).

1. Definition of Sexual Conduct Under the Rape-Shield Statute.

A. Background

Under the rape-shield statute, MCL 750.520j, a defendant accused of rape cannot offer evidence of a victim's past "sexual conduct." The two exceptions to this are past instances of "sexual conduct" with the defendant, and specific instances of "sexual activity" that caused disease or pregnancy. Under the statute, each of these exceptions can only be used if the inflammatory or prejudicial nature of the evidence does not outweigh its probative value. The statute does not define "sexual conduct."

In People v Duenaz, the Court of Appeals upheld a trial court's ruling that the defendant's evidence, which showed the victim was abused by her then-step-father a year prior, was inadmissible. The Supreme Court denied the defendant's application for leave to appeal. In the Order denying the application for leave to appeal, the Supreme Court noted the term "sexual conduct" is not defined by statute and encouraged the Legislature to "clarify whether evidence of prior sexual abuse constitutes 'sexual conduct' within the meaning of the rape-shield statute."

The Court cited two cases in which the courts were divided. In People v Piscopo, 480 Mich 966, 970 741 NW2d 826 (2007), Justice Markman dissented from an order denying an application for leave to appeal, which held that a defendant cannot admit evidence that his victim has been sexually abused (in this case, the victim purported to have been raped by a demon). Justice Markman noted that "sexual conduct" should only encompass behavior and voluntary conduct because of the dictionary definition of "conduct" and because the statute contrasts "sexual conduct" with a broader term of "sexual activity". Id. In People v Parks, 483 Mich 1040, 1057; 766 NW2d 650 (2009), Justices Markman and Cavanagh reiterated this view. However, Justice Young disagreed with Justice Markman's view and concurred with the majority in denying the application for leave to appeal. Justice Young noted that Justice Markman's interpretation of the term "sexual conduct" would give prostitutes more protection than rape victims.

B. Question Presented

Should the Legislature amend the rape-shield statute, MCL 750.520j, to clarify whether evidence of sexual abuse constitutes "sexual conduct" within the meaning of the statute?

C. Recommendation

The Commission recommends legislative review of this issue, but makes no recommendation of specific legislative action.

2. Lack of a Rebuttal Process Challenging the Presumption of Unfitness in Parental Rights Terminations Where the Parent Has Had His or Her Rights Terminated in the Past

A. Background

Under MCL 712A.19b(3)(l) of the Probate Code, a court may terminate parental rights when the person's parental rights to another child have been terminated by proceedings under MCL 712A.2(b) or the similar proceedings of another state. MCL 712A.2(b), in contrast to MCL 712A.19b(3)(l), allows for termination of rights because of neglect or refusal "to provide proper or necessary support, education, medical, surgical, or other care necessary for [a child's] health or morals"; because of a home being unfit due to the "neglect, cruelty, drunkenness, criminality, or depravity" of a parent, guardian, or nonparental adult; because the child is in danger of physical or psychological harm; and other reasons.

In this case, respondent's parental rights to other children were previously terminated in prior proceedings, and, on that basis, in this case, her rights to the minor child were terminated under section 19b(3)(l). The Court of Appeals considered a due process challenge to subdivision (l) and held that when a parent has been subjected to an earlier termination of parental rights, if the facts of the current case do not justify a new termination, application of subdivision (l) creates a presumption of a parent's unfitness that operates to deny a fair opportunity to rebut the presumption in violation of the due process clauses of the Federal and Michigan Constitutions. In re: Gach, No. 328714, 2016 Mich App LEXIS 783, at *14-20 (Apr. 19, 2016).

In reviewing the statutory provisions, the Court explained that in contrast to other provisions in the statute, under MCL 712A.19b(3)(l), there is no requirement that its application be limited to enumerated standards such as serious and chronic neglect or physical or sexual abuse when prior attempts to rehabilitate the parents have been unsuccessful. Rather, under subsection (3)(l), a trial court may proceed directly to a termination proceeding when it has taken jurisdiction over a child and when the respondent has had a prior termination for any reason. The Court reasoned that this statutory provision creates "a presumption of a respondent's unfitness when that respondent has been subjected to a prior termination (and the State has no burden to prove the parent is still unfit)." Id. at 17. The U.S. Supreme Court has held that "a statute creating a presumption which operates to deny a fair opportunity to rebut it violates the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment." Vlandis v Kline, 412 U.S. 441 (1973). For these reasons, the Court held that MCL 712A.19b(3)(l) violates the Due Process Clauses of the Federal and State Constitutions.

B. Question Presented

Should the Legislature amend MCL 712A.19b(3)(l) to address the Constitutional violation as held by the Court?

C. Recommendation

The Commission recommends that the Legislature amend MCL 712A.19b(3)(l) to bring it into compliance with the Due Process Clauses of the Federal and Michigan Constitutions.

BERT JOHNSON

State Senator Bert Johnson is a legislative member of the Michigan Law Revision Commission and has served on the Commission since January 2015.

A lifelong resident with a 100-plus year family history in Detroit, Bert Johnson grew up in Russell Woods, on the city's west side, the son of a postal employee and an attorney. He attended the University of Detroit Jesuit High School and Academy and the University of Detroit – Mercy.

Senator Johnson went on to manage his family's law firm for a decade before serving as then-State Representative Bill McConico's Chief of Staff for five years. When Representative McConico was unable to run for reelection due to term limits, Senator Johnson, with strong grassroots and community support, ran to succeed him in the Legislature in 2006. A leader with the skills and experience to advance a progressive, forward-thinking agenda, Senator Johnson quickly established himself as a go-to person when it comes to passing legislation.

Senator Johnson's work on behalf of Michigan's citizens has been recognized with various awards and honors, which include a "Men of Excellence" Award from the Michigan Chronicle, a "Great Expectations" Award from the Detroit Branch NAACP, a "Humane Legislator of the Year" Award from the Humane Society of the United States, a "Friend of the MAC" Award from the Michigan Association of Counties, and a "Cancer Prevention" Award from the national organization, Less Cancer, in honor of his work to establish Cancer Prevention Day in Michigan. His passions and legislative focus issues include educational access for all, civil rights, regional mass transit, foreclosure relief, improved and more affordable healthcare, addressing the expansion of the prison-industrial complex, environmental responsibility, and economic development and investment.

In the 2009-2010 legislative session, only Senator Johnson's second term in the Michigan House, he solidified his reputation as a problem-solver. As a two-term Detroit Caucus Chair and serving as one of only two African-American committee chairs in the Michigan government, he held the gavel for the powerful Regulatory Reform committee. Senator Johnson passed more laws that session than any other Democratic or Republican member in the House or the Senate. His performance led former Senate Democratic Floor Leader Buzz Thomas to call him, "Detroit's most effective legislator."

Today, Senator Johnson is able to drive a statewide discussion despite serving in the 'super-minority' in the Senate, while still achieving real results for his constituents. He was a lead sponsor of legislation that established a regional transit authority in southeastern Michigan and authored the bill that eliminated the egregious charges associated with the draconian Driver's Responsibility Fee.

Senator Johnson is a board member for Michigan Youth in Government and regularly addresses their conventions at the Capitol. He has been Treasurer of the Michigan Legislative Black Caucus and has served with defense and prosecuting attorneys, judges, justice advocates and others on the statewide Indigent Defense Advisory Commission, tasked with making recommendations on improving Michigan's public defender system.

Senator Johnson represents the 2nd Senate District, which includes northeast Detroit, Highland Park, Hamtramck, Harper Woods and the five Grosse Pointe Communities. He serves on the Regulatory Reform Committee, the Insurance Committee, and as Minority Vice-Chair of the Outdoor Recreation and Tourism Committee and Families, Seniors and Human Services Committee.
