Mass parachute jump kicks off 80th anniversary of D-Day

CAREN - TAN-LES-MARAIS, France (AP) — Parachutists jumping from World War II-era planes hurled themselves Sunday into now peaceful Normandy skies where war once raged, heralding a week of ceremonies for the fast-disappearing generation of Allied troops who fought from D-Day beaches 80 years ago to Adolf Hitler's fall, helping free Europe of his tyranny.
All along the Normandy coastline — where then-young soldiers from across the United States, Britain, Canada and other Allied nations waded ashore through hails of fire on five beaches on June 6, 1944 — French officials, grateful Normandy survivors and other admirers are saying "merci" but also goodbye.
The ever-dwindling number of veterans in their late nineties and older who are coming back to remember fallen friends and their history-changing exploits are the last.
Part of the purpose of fireworks shows, parachute jumps, solemn commemorations and ceremonies that world leaders will attend this week is to pass the baton of remembrance to the current generations now seeing war again in Europe, in Ukraine. U.S. President Joe Biden, Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy and British royals are among the VIPs that France is expecting for the D-Day events.

On Sunday, three C-47 transport planes, a workhorse of the war, dropped three long strings of jumpers, their round chutes mushrooming open in the blue skies with puffy white clouds, to whoops from the huge crowd that was regaled by tunes from Glenn Miller and Edith Piaf as they waited.
The planes looped around and dropped another three sticks of jumpers. Some of the loudest applause from the crowd arose when a startled deer pounced from the undergrowth as the jumpers were landing and sprinted across the landing zone.

Gilbert Clarke a D-Day veteran smiles as he is interviewed near his home in east London, Wednesday, May 15, 2024. Clarke, now 98, is one of more than 3 million men and women from South Asia, Africa and the Caribbean who served in the British military during World War II.

Remembering D-Day, RAF veteran Gilbert Clarke recalls the thrill of planes overhead

LONDON (AP) — Gilbert Clarke leans back on the seat of his mobility scooter, cranes his neck and gazes into the bright blue skies over East London, remembering the moment 80 years ago when he knew the invasion of France was under way.
Clarke, then an 18-year-old Royal Air Force volunteer from Jamaica, was still a trainee learning about the intricacies of radar systems when the roar of aircraft engines forced him to look to the heavens on June 6, 1944. "You couldn't have seen the blue sky," Clarke recalled, his voice tinged with awe eight decades later. "Was all planes. Hundreds and thousands of them — all shapes and sizes. All different type of plane. The instructor (said) 'Hmm. Well, boys, it's started.'" port the war effort after the Nazis occupied Europe and threatened to invade Britain, said George Hay, a historian for the Commonwealth War Graves Commission. Those contributions should be remembered along with the sacrifices of those who fought and died on the Normandy beaches, he said.

"It's incredibly important, what those men managed to do on the beaches on that one day," Hay said. "But what gets them there and what keeps them there and what allows them to fight on from that point is far bigger than those who actually put their feet on the sand."
That includes ground crew members like Clarke, who had the unglamorous but vital job of maintaining the aircraft that were crucial to the success of the Normandy campaign.
The RAF was a popular destination for Black volunteers because the air force lifted the "color bar" soon after war broke out and it started recruiting in the Caribbean in 1940. By the end of the war, around 6,000 West Indian men had enlisted in the RAF, with 450 assigned to air crews and another 5,500 serving on the ground. Eighty women joined the Women's Auxiliary Air Force.

Many of the recruits faced racism, despite an official ban on discrimination. Still, many thrived.
One of the most highly decorated West Indian volunteers was navigator Philip Louis Ulric Cross, a native of Trinidad and Tobago who flew 80 missions over Germany and occupied Europe. Cross, who died in 2013, was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and was promoted to squadron leader before he left the RAF.
He later served as a high court judge in Trinidad and returned to London as the high commissioner for Trinidad and Tobago in 1990.
Clarke was a teenager in Montego Bay when he heard reports of German submarines attacking ships in the Caribbean and figured the war was coming to Jamaica. Rather than wait for that to happen, he decided to enlist.

"We were all in a situation where someone's gotta do something to end what was going on," Clarke said, speaking softly, with a Jamaican lilt still in his voice. "And (I'm) proud to know I did my little bit."
Still, there was a "flood of tears" when Clarke went home to say goodbye. He soon found himself on board a troop ship that was part of a convoy being attacked by U-boats, but he made it safely to Liverpool and was assigned to a base in northern England for training.
Life in the RAF proved to be a series of Nissen huts, prefabricated structures made of corrugated iron bent over a semi-circular frame and heated with a single wood- or coal-burning stove.

MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF TREASURY MICHIGAN GAMING CONTROL BOARD NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Internet Gaming Rules
ADMINISTRATIVE RULES 2024-4-TY

The Michigan Gaming Control Board will hold a public hearing at the following time and date to receive comments by interested persons on internet gaming rules.

Date: July 11, 2024
Time: 10:00 a.m. – 12:00 p.m.

The public hearing will take place at the Michigan Gaming Control Board, 3062 W. Grand Blvd, Suite L-700, Detroit, Michigan.

These rules are authorized under sections 10(c) & 10(g) of the Lawful Internet Gaming Act, which provides the board with authority to promulgate any rules necessary and proper to govern internet gaming, including requirements to ensure responsible gaming and requirements for vendors and vendor registration. MCL 432.310(c) & (g).

The proposed amendments will:

- (1) Clarify the vendor requirements and the vendor registration process contained in rule 629, Mich Admin Code R 432.629, consistent with the Lawful Internet Gaming Act, MCL 432.301 – 332. Currently, the provisions governing vendor requirements and registration are all in rule 629. The proposed amendments will keep vendor requirements in rule 629 and will move vendor registration to newly added rule 629a.
- (2) Amend part of the responsible gaming requirement imposed in rule 654(a), Mich Admin Code R 432.654(a).
