Calumet Theatre sees most successful show in decade

By GRAHAM JAEHNIG
Houghton Daily Mining Gazette

CALUMET — The Keweenaw Symphony Orchestra performed at the Calumet Theatre on Saturday to a near sell-out audience.

“We can safely say that that was one of the biggest shows we’ve had in a long, long time,” Calumet Theatre Co. Board Chairman Dan Jamison said. “I’d say at least 10 years.”

Jamison said he did not have a final count on ticket sales, but it was over 550. The theater’s seating capacity is 625.

Jamison said the show came about as a result of an exchange of favors between the Rozsa Theater and the Calumet Theatre.

Jamison and a number of Theatre members were part of a volunteer stage crew for Rosza Center’s production of My Fair Lady, he said. My Fair Lady and the symphony concert were scheduled for the same night, but parking and stages created difficulties.

“Rozsa has a big stage and a small stage,” Jamison said, “while the Calumet Theatre has a mid-sized stage. We had ‘right-sized’ the activity for the stage.”

Saturday night’s concert marked the first time in a decade that the Keweenaw Symphony Orchestra has performed at the Theatre.

Founded in 1971, the Keweenaw Symphony Orchestra is the oldest orchestra in the Upper Peninsula.

The KSO is made up of Michigan Tech students, faculty and staff, and community musicians.

Gladstone BraveBots alliance wins robotics tournament

By ESCANABA Daily Press staff

ESCANABA — The Gladstone BraveBots robotics team were the district event winner at the FIRST in Michigan District Escanaba Event, a robotics competition held in Escanaba over the weekend.

The BraveBots finished the Escanaba tournament this weekend with a 15-2 record and is currently ranked ninth in the state.

The Gladstone BraveBots competed against 38 other teams from Michigan hailing from both the Upper and Lower Peninsula this past weekend in Escanaba. The robotics season kicks off the first week of January and continues to the end of April. Each season teams compete in two district events and secure enough ranking points to be able to compete in the state championship held at Saginaw Valley State University. The top teams finishing at the state level are then invited to play in the world championship held in Houston, Texas.

The BraveBots first competition of the 2024 season kicked off in Escanaba this weekend where they were able to team up with teams from Houghton and Menominee to secure a blue banner in the finals match.

“We have a very young team this year,” said Coach Tim Barron. The BraveBots lost four seniors last year and every main position within the team had to be filled with students who were new to their position. Matthew Hagebush (Sophomore) and Logan Vesser (Junior) secured the drive positions, Owen Labadie (Senior) is our technician, Peyton Rohr (sophomore) earned the Captain seat plus and Teegan Vantassel secured the lead scout position (freshman). “To say I was nervous about the depth of our team is an understatement. But it became clear by the second week of our build season that this is one of the hardest working group of students I’ve ever had.”

FIRST Robotics Competition challenges teams around the world made up of high schoolers — often mentored by graduates and others with useful knowledge and experience — to practice engineering, programming and other relevant skills to build and drive robots to complete given tasks. Each year, a new game is unveiled, and the thousands of teams across 31 countries all must work within given parameters and with the same objective.

It’s been just two months since FRC presented the rules for “Crescendo,” the 2024 game. During matches, six teams play at a time and two alliances, each made up of three individual teams, compete against one another to score points. There are a few ways points can be earned. Crescendo is music-themed, so game play reflects this. The object is to get orange rings referred to as “notes” into structures called “speakers” and “amps” along the sides of the field or “onstage” in the middle. Matches are just two-and-a-half minutes long and include a 15-second autonomous period — wherein programmed robots drive themselves — before a second phase allows drivers to remotely operate their robots.

The BraveBots schedule during the build season is practice six days a week with an average of 22 hours a week. It’s a tough schedule for students who have to maintain good grades, participate in other sports, keep up with family activities and some even hold down outside jobs.

“I preach every day about what it takes to be a BraveBot and that the harder we work the luckier we will get. I know our schedule is tough but these kids never complained, they showed up, worked together and put in more than what was asked. I can’t be more thrilled that they were rewarded for their effort”.

The BraveBots will move on to their second district next weekend at Lake Superior State University. To see the matches online tune in at bluealliance.com. Barron recommends that you keep an eye on the team’s killer autonomous (first 15 seconds of the match where the robot is programmed to run on its own) and the skills of our drivers. “These kids performed great in their first competition. I can’t wait to see what they do when they get more experience.”

Justin “Buzz” Massie and his 15-year-old daughter, Dakota, look off the 75-foot suspension bridge they constructed last year over the Sturgeon River on their property in Foster City. ## Foster City family puts span across Sturgeon River

By BETSY BLOOM
Iron Mountain Daily News

FOSTER CITY — The Massie home overlooks the east branch of the Sturgeon River, which runs fast enough to stay open all year, especially in this odd-year warm winter.

The trumpeter swans have stuck around since fall. The Canada geese returned a few weeks ago. Their calls can be heard even within the house that outwardly looks like a classic red pole barn. But the river stands as a year-round barrier between the family property and the ATV and snowmobile trail that extend from Escanaba to Solberg’s in Felch Township, even on to Sagola.

So Justin “Buzz” Massie and others last summer put up a bridge, lit by blue rope lights, glowing enough each night to be seen by motorists who travel M-69 through Foster City.

“We get lots of compliments on it,” Massie said.

The 20-year employee of the Dickinson County Road Commission designed this private 75-foot suspension bridge himself.

“I wanted to get across the river,” Massie said, “so

I just started drawing it up.”

He and a few buddies set the framework in place on his property in June. It took about four months to complete the span, with 15-year-old daughter Dakota working by his side.

“I was my own engineer,” Massie said, “and I fired myself about three times.”

But the bridge is sound and has all the proper permits. It’s held up by two parallel cables running the length of the bridge, with chains attaching the cables to the deck to support the structure over the water.

“The heartbeat of the bridge is the cables that go into the ground,” he explained.

The aim was to provide a connection to the local ATV trail that didn’t require getting onto the highway. Dakota, a sophomore at North Dickinson County School in neighboring Felch Township, is an outdoors enthusiast who enjoys deer hunting and fishing in the area.

They have named it the Morgan Bridge, after the Morgan Lumber & Cedar Company sawmill operation that was an early fixture in Foster City until it closed in 1923. While the Massies have only been at W2323 M-69 for about 3 1/2 years, both Buzz and wife Sarah were born and raised in Foster City, so they have some knowledge of its history.

At its height, Morgan Lumber had a company store, several company houses, a steam engine for hauling logs, dairy barns for supplying Foster City residents with products during the winter and fields for growing wheat, according to a PowerPoint presentation on “Early Dickinson County Sawmill Settlements” local historian William John Cummings compiled in 2015.

The bridge for now only is open to friends and family, Massie said. They’d hoped to get more use out of the shortcut to the trail but lack of snow made for scant opportunities.

Still, ATV season should be right around the corner.
